READING COMPREHENSION (25 marks)

1. Read the text. Name five South American countries mentioned in the text. (5 marks)

Read about these students' experiences on a gap year before they started university.

Emily is studying English. She went to India.

What did you do? I worked for a local newspaper as a trainee journalist. Journalism is very competitive and it's difficult to find a job. I spoke to a careers advisor and she told me I should try to get some work experience. I always wanted to visit India and getting work experience over there was a bit easier than in the UK. India was fantastic; not only did I learn a lot about journalism, but I also met some amazing people and saw some beautiful places while I was travelling. My favourite place in India has got to be the Taj Mahal - it is the most spectacular building I've ever seen.

Jake is studying engineering. He went to South America.

What did you do? Well, I started in Venezuela, where I stayed with friends of mine in Caracas. It was so helpful having somebody who knew their way around and it gave me the opportunity to do things that usually only the local people can do. After Venezuela I went to Brazil. I worked with children in Rio for three months. I taught them English and maths and also some sports. It was great fun. Then I moved on to Argentina and I worked on a farm for two months. The work was hard and tiring, but it was fun too. After Argentina I went to Uruguay, where I did more work with children, teaching them sports. I wasn't paid for the work I did there, so I had to be very organized with my money. Then I finished my journey in Chile.
